

A landlord can lawfully let a sub-standard property if all “relevant energy efficiency improvements” have been undertaken or if there are none that could be made to the property

